Brief Description about Activity

Date: 05/11/2025

Time: 2.00 pm onwards

Venue: Digital Classroom, DKKKP'S

Guest Speaker:

1. Mr. Vikram Balwant Sir

Introduction:

A guest lecture was organized to provide students with insights into the emerging career opportunities in the field of pharmacy, with a special focus on the role of Artificial Intelligence in Healthcare.

The session was aimed at highlighting the significant transformations taking place in the pharmaceutical industry, and how new-age technologies are reshaping the roles and scope of pharmacists and pharmaceutical scientists in both the academic and industrial domains.

Overview of the Lecture:

The guest lecture explored the emerging role of Artificial Intelligence (AI) in pharmacy, highlighting its potential to transform patient care, improve treatment outcomes, and revolutionize pharmacy practice. The lecture covered current applications, future directions, and challenges associated with AI in pharmacy.

- Current AI Applications in Pharmacy:

- Medication management and adherence
- Personalized medicine and precision dosing
- Clinical decision support systems
- Pharmacy automation and robotics
- AI in drug discovery and development
- Use of machine learning for predicting drug interactions and side effects
- AI-driven tools for personalized medicine and clinical decision support

• Future Directions:

- Predictive analytics and disease forecasting
- AI-driven drug discovery and development
- Virtual health assistants and chatbots
- Integration with electronic health records (EHRs)

• Challenges and Opportunities:

- Data quality and integration
- Regulatory frameworks and ethical considerations
- Pharmacist training and education
- Patient engagement and acceptance

The speaker also discussed how interdisciplinary knowledge — combining pharmacy with computer science, biotechnology, and materials science — is crucial for modern pharmaceutical careers.

Career Opportunities Discussed:

Students were introduced to a variety of career options, including but not limited to:

- Research roles in pharmaceutical R&D
- AI-driven drug design and predictive analytics
- Regulatory affairs with expertise in tech-enabled products
- Academia and interdisciplinary teaching
- Careers in biotech and nanotech startups
- Clinical data analysis and digital health innovation

Conclusion:

The session concluded with an interactive Q&A, where students expressed keen interest in pursuing careers at the intersection of pharmacy, nanotechnology, and AI. The speaker encouraged students to develop cross-disciplinary skills, pursue internships, and stay updated with global trends in pharma technology.
